NEW BUSINESS:

Jere Brunette, Ledyard Rd, appeared before the board to request a variance of 63' from the setback requirement on the north property line to operate and construct an indoor archery range.

Discussion was held on the following: The building needs to be 120' long. The lot is 180' X 180'. Can the building be turned sideways? If the building was to be turned sideways, the applicant would need two variances for the setbacks. The standard size for an indoor archery range is 30 yards long for shooting. Sheppard disclosed that his partner at the firm represents the applicant. There are other buildings in the area that don't meet the setback requirement. This is a special case in that the ordinance clearly points out the restrictions of the 100' setback for an indoor archery range when next to a residential zone. The setback for a commercial to commercial lot is 15'. The setback for commercial to residential lot is 25'.

At this time the public hearing was open to the public. Bryan, Wade Trim explained that the building would be at least 76' from the house to the north.

Chariman, Noble, asked if this is something that can be referred back to the planning commission to possibly amend the ordinance?

At this time the meeting was closed to the public.

Discussion continued: The applicant can ask the board to table the variance and recess the public hearing and request that the Planning Commission amend the ordinance.

Motion by Howell supported by Brey to table consideration of the variance to Jere Brunette, Ledyard Rd., and to recess the public hearing. The board is also asking that the Planning Commission look at amending the ordinance to allow indoor archery ranges to have a setback the same as other commercial to residential lots.
